

RESEARCH OFFICER

(25-month contract, Part-time: 24 hours per week)

The Harry Crossley Children's Nursing Development Unit DEPARTMENT OF PAEDIATRICS & CHILD HEALTH FACULTY OF HEALTH SCIENCES

The Harry Crossley Children's Nursing Development Unit invites applications for a Masters prepared health professional as a part-time Research Officer in the Department of Paediatrics and Child Health in the Faculty of Health Sciences.

The Harry Crossley Children's Nursing Development Unit is a teaching and scholarship unit that continues to build capacity in children's healthcare in Africa. We have been supporting nurses and interprofessional teams, educators and leaders as they strive for best outcomes for children through contextually appropriate evidence-based practice and a commitment to unapologetic African excellence. This opportunity is for a Research Officer to develop the children's workforce work and also provides the possibility of growing scholarship and attracting additional funding in your area of interest or expertise in children's health.

The incumbent will be expected to develop the Unit's children's nursing workforce data in Sub Saharan Africa into a full programme of research extending the work to include children's health and rehabilitation professionals in the region. The work will also include convening one clinical research course at Masters level, supporting the development and publication of evidence-based guidelines for use in local healthcare settings.
